

JUSTICE REFUSES TO END FACTIONAL WAR OF WOMEN FORESTERS

Convention to Depose Mrs.
Corcoran, However, Was Delayed by Law.

Supreme Court Justice Greenbaum refused today to interfere in the factional fight which has divided the Companions of the Forest of America into two hostile camps. He denied an application made by Mrs. Anne E. Corcoran, the former Supreme Companion, who is characterized by her opponents as the "Carolina," to restrain a national convention called in New York City today by the faction headed by Mrs. Anne Poth and Miss Julia A. McCarthy to oust Mrs. Corcoran.

The convention was to be called at 10 o'clock this morning in Pabst Coliseum, One Hundred and Tenth street and Fifth avenue, but it was 12:30 o'clock before Justice Greenbaum handed down his opinion, which permits the convention to proceed. As soon as the Court's decision was filed representatives of both sides hurried to telephones and forwarded instructions to the convention hall, where 400 delegates from circles throughout the United States were assembled to fight the regime of Mrs. Corcoran to a finish.

According to statements made to Justice Greenbaum by Clark L. Jordan, representing the Poth-McCarthy faction, the discontented members are in the majority, and decided to hold the special convention for the sole purpose of deposing the "Carolina" and restoring Mrs. Poth and her friends to power in the society, which has a membership of more than 40,000 women, it is stated. The society is an auxiliary of the Foresters of America.

At the convention it was proposed to obtain approval from the delegates for the election of Miss McCarthy to Mrs. Corcoran's place, a proceeding which Mrs. Corcoran contested and which resulted in Mrs. Corcoran ousting all others not friendly to her. Justice Greenbaum finds that Miss McCarthy's election, which was brought about by a majority delegation, was a legal one and declares that if Mrs. Corcoran's position was sustained by a court decree that it would be possible for one woman to perpetuate herself in office in the society as long as she chose. Mrs. Corcoran extended the constitutional rights of the Supreme Companion, the Court declared.
